NEW ENGINEERING BUILDING at the corner of University and Milton is expected to be ready for occupancy in September.

Construction of the building was financed by a $2.5 million donation from J. W. McConnell.

UBC Students Fight Possible Fee Increase

VANCOUVER — (CUP) — Students of the University of British Columbia, their parents and their friends, have been urged to write to members of the provincial legislature in protest against possible fee raises.

The university administration has submitted its budget estimate to the provincial government, but if the request is not met, fees will have to be raised — "a last resort", said one university official.

The President of the Alma Mater Society, Chuck Connaghan, instituted the letter writing campaign in order to bring the situation to the attention of the legislature, which will bring down the budget this month.

If the operating grant is not passed, a third "Great Trek" — a march on Victoria, the capital — has been proposed by many students. The first Trek took place to get the campus built, and the second to get needed buildings in 1957. The present campaign has been nicknamed by some as "The Trek by Mail".

DELEGATION SUGGESTED

Another more moderate group has suggested that, instead of a mass invasion of Victoria, a selected student delegation should present their case to the legislature. If this move should fail, then the possibility of Great Trek could be discussed.

Connaghan estimates that seventy percent of the students who attended UBC last year and did not return this year, were caused to drop out because of lack of funds. If a fee raise, estimated by him at over $100 per annum, should be instituted, a greater number of withdrawals is probable.

Quebec Group Meets

The executive of the Quebec Association of Universities will meet in Sherbrooke on Sunday. McGill will be represented by Students' Society President Roy Heenan.

Absent from the meeting will be Bishop's University of Lennoxville, which withdrew from the Association immediately after the December 2 meeting with Premier Duplessis.

Bishop's representatives had opposed Association policy on grants to universities, claiming that grants were not the proper concern of students. They had also feared involvement in politics.

On the agenda for Sunday's meeting are the Bishop's withdrawal, the results of the Duplessis meeting, the provincial government's new estimates for grants to universities, and the National University Student Day which is planned for March 5.

The student presidents will also discuss a proposed student petition of the Legislative Assembly.

Schoolmate Of Castro To Speak

A former schoolmate of Cuban revolutionary chief Fidel Castro will visit McGill on Monday.

Rev. Father Fernando Martinez will speak to students at 7 pm in the Union. His topic is the future of Cuba following the overthrow of the Batista regime, and he will answer questions following the lecture.

Father Martinez graduated from the Colegio Belen in 1947 together with Castro, with whom he was well acquainted. The two went through high school together, and Father Martinez spent a year at the University of Havana, where Castro studied law.

Father Martinez studied architecture before entering the priesthood in 1948, when he began his studies to become a Jesuit. He has devoted much time to the study of Cuba's economic and cultural problems.

The lecture is sponsored by the Spanish Club.

Engineers' New Home

Building Probably Finished By Fall

by DENIS COUPLAND

The new McConnell Engineering Building is expected to be opened at the beginning of the fall term, and all work on the interior will be finished by October.

The construction superintendent, Michael Amber, told the Daily that the job may be slightly behind schedule due to cold weather, which hinders the pouring of cement, but this lag should be made up during the spring and summer. Excavation was slowed last summer by heavy rains and the construction itself was delayed by the tardy arrival of the reinforcing steel for the supporting pillars.

The frame has now been completed, except for the roof of the penthouse, and stone siding has been applied as far as the second floor. In addition, the heating and water systems have been installed up to the fifth floor.

ELEVATORS FOR STUDENTS

The building will have many innovations not to be found elsewhere at McGill. For instance, engineers will no longer have to climb wearily to their classes, but will be conveyed in two new elevators, and there will be one for the staff as well. Plans have

Toronto Fraternity Man Suspended — Five Fined

The Caput, supreme disciplinary body of the University of Toronto, has ordered five members of Delta Tau Delta fraternity to pay $50 fines, and has suspended another student from the university for a year.

The Caput also barred the five Delta Tau Delta members from organizations for the academic tenure of office in university year 1959-60 for their part in the removal on December 17 of a Christmas tree erected by the Engineering Society. The theft of the tree was referred to as an act of "vandalism" by the disciplinary board. In an official statement, the Caput said, "evidence was brought to suggest that the remainder of the Engineering Society's Christmas tree had been removed by a group of other students of the University to their fraternity house."

For breaking into Whitney Hall, a women's residence of University College, Angus H. MacDonald, a graduate student in business administration, was suspended from the university for the academic year 1958-59. The Caput's statement noted explicitly that MacDonald is a member of a fraternity, (Zeta Psi).

MORE INVESTIGATION

As a result of the incidents, the Caput has announced that it will "consider the general question of the relations existing between fraternities and the University."

Fraternity behaviour caused concern on the part of Toronto residents and university authorities in the past.

At a recent meeting of the Neighbourhood Association of East Annex, a district in which eleven U. of T. fraternities maintain houses, some residents of the area told a member of the city planning board that the noise from fraternity parties at times became so annoying that they were forced to notify the police. The fraternities denied the charges.

The situation drew strong comment in an editorial in the Varsity, U. of T. student publication. Said the Varsity: "By refusing to co-operate with the University and risk losing their autonomy, the fraternities are rapidly discouraging any sympathy with their continued existence."

Letters To The Daily

Expresses View On CBC Strike

To the Editor:

The CBC — Producers dispute presents an interesting problem where neither side is entirely in the right. The Producers felt justified in associating, and called a strike to back this up, because this seemed the only remaining way in which they could sit down with the CBC and discuss points of disagreement. The CBC, on the other hand, refuses to recognize this association on the grounds that Producers are an essential part of management.

Perhaps an analogy can be drawn here between the Producer with his almost professional classification within the corporation and the professional engineer within an industrial organization. The engineer, when not working in an administrative capacity, often has the right to hire and fire and perform managerial functions. He is not classified as a manager, yet his professional status belies any attempt to classify him as labour. He has a professional corporation yet any dealings he has with management are as an individual. He signs no contract and his employment termination or retention is of no concern to other engineers working in the same organization.

The main point here, is that the company employing him recognizes his professional status and accords him the dignity and respect associated with it.

Perhaps a similar situation can be developed within the framework of the CBC. It would, naturally, require concessions on the part of both CBC management and the producers.

The CBC would have to adopt a new attitude in its dealings with the producers, and accord them a professional status. There is very little doubt that within the CBC framework they must be given the classification of professionals. The producers would have to give up all attempts to act and bargain as a group and be willing to accept their fate as individuals, without yearly contracts.

With a professional status, the producers would have to act accordingly, and a dispute with the CBC would not be sufficient grounds for walking out. Most groups who have achieved professional status have had to fight long for it, and they did not do it by striking. This is decorum that is unbecoming for a professional.

But once again, the CBC's management would require far-sightedness, and a willingness to help the producers achieve the personal dignity, within the corporation, that they desire, and deserve.

UBC Fees

The fees at UBC are at present $246 per year in arts and science as compared to $550 and $600 respectively at McGill, and $298 for engineering to $700 at McGill. A raise in fees of even $300 would therefore not equal McGill rates.

What They Don't Know...

Premier Maurice Duplessis has once again vetoed Opposition requests for a Hansard report of the Quebec Legislature. The reason for his refusal to consider the suggestion was that the cost (approximately $200,000 per annum) was prohibitive and that he would rather spend the money on "health, school construction, and aid for farmers and workers".

These are indeed worthwhile projects and none of us would object to the spending of government money on health and schools. But the Premier seems to be purposely obscuring the central issue which is the right of every citizen to know the truth about what goes on in his government. We are entitled to have a full and accurate report of all Parliamentary debates and we must insist on these accounts.

We can very well understand the Premier's reluctance to permit verbatim reports of the debates in the Assembly. If the truth were told, the citizens of Quebec might finally come to realize to what extent their provincial parliament has become a mockery of the democratic ideals on which it was founded.

M. Duplessis and his defenders have said that a Hansard is not necessary because the debates in the House are reported in the press. He has admitted, however, that "errors still appeared in these published accounts" although these errors are due to the fact that "acoustics in the Lower House are poor and some members speak rapidly".

We feel that the Premier has oversimplified matters considerably. It seems strange that although the acoustics are poor when Opposition members speak, they are appreciably improved when the Premier rises to make a point. It might be more accurate to say that a Hansard would not be of such vital importance if the press of this Province were courageous enough to print the truth and tell their readers what really was said, regardless of who happened to be the speaker.

But as long as the parliamentary correspondents are satisfied to prostitute their principles and take their orders (and press releases) from the party-in-power we can have no confidence in their reports. And as long as the publishers of this Province are willing to overlook this situation and permit their newspapers to be mere spokesmen for the Union Nationale and its policies, the need for a Hansard to tell us the truth remains as pressing as ever.

It is about time that the citizens of Quebec realized the gravity of the situation. How can they continue to elect a government which refuses to publish the debates of the Assembly in which the public business is being conducted? How can they continue to condone a press which tells only half the truth?

The fact that M. Duplessis has refused to consider the request for a Hansard in the Quebec Legislature serves merely to illustrate the nature of our provincial government. Although any rational observer would condemn this action as an affront on the Parliamentary system and all it stands for, it comes as no surprise to one who has been following Quebec affairs for the past several years. In fact, actions like this are expected. They are not the exception. They are the rule.

It is also not surprising that The Montreal Star eludes the issue by saying simply that "it is a subject, surely, which the government should not dismiss out of hand". When the most powerful English-language newspaper in the Province can treat the Hansard affair (and others like it) in such a casual, matter-of-fact manner, the time for action has come. It is shameful to permit this type of government to continue in a country which is supposed to be both "glorious and free".

Hockey, Basketball Teams Set For Weekend Games

En Route To Toronto And Then To Queen's: What should be an improved McGill Hockey team left Montreal last night with a busy weekend ahead of them.

At 8:00 pm tonight, the Redmen will meet the Toronto Blues. Although they have been defeated by the Laval squad, the Blues seem to hold an edge over the other teams in the league. The Torontonians, however, do not find the Intercollegiate League to be enough of a challenge. They were desirous of becoming Canada's representatives to the Olympic games next year, and the Toronto Varsity thinks that they "have every right to challenge for the Allen Cup." All this adds up to a difficult game for the Redmen. In the only Blue game of the new year, Toronto tied Kingston of the Senior O.H.A. League.

Speaking of Kingston brings us to the second game for the Red And White. Saturday afternoon, they will meet the Queen's Golden Gaels in an exhibition game.

The locals meet the Gaels last year in their first game of the season, and overcame a two goal deficit to win 4-2 at the MWS. The Redmen, being weaker this year, might have trouble with the Kingstons.

Terry 'Rouge' O'Connor will probably take over the centre chores on the first line between Ivan Saunders and Joe Irvin. Rouge should do much to aid the Red And White attack.

Alex Herron, able Redmen goal-er, should have an easier time than he has had, due to a new addition to the defensive group, husky Dave Laroche.

The McGill Redmen, basketball edition, hit the intercollegiate trail today for the first time this season. The Red and White five will take on the McMaster Marauders tonight in Hamilton, and tomorrow night meet the highly rated University of Toronto Blues.

Out to garner their first win in intercollegiate competition since the 1957 season, rookie coach Ron Sharpe's crew are favourites to down the Marauders. Although both of these teams failed to pick up victories in their league openers, the McMaster squad came out on the short end of a 30 point defeat at the hands of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, whereas the Redmen lost a close decision to the Purple Lancers from Assumption. Missing from the McMaster lineup this season is Russ Jackson of Big Four football fame. Jackson was a stalwart for the Marauders for the past few seasons, and last year he was selected to the intercollegiate all-star basketball team.

Tomorrow night's encounter should prove to be a solid match for the McGill quintet, as the Blues, last year's intercollegiate champions, are reported to have a potent team. Back with the Toronto five this season are the Stulac brothers, fine ballhandlers and sharpshooters.

Coach Sharpe announced last night that Herm Kovits, an unexpected returnee from last year's squad, will not see action this weekend. Kovits will not make the journey to Ontario due to the pressure of studies.

BOXING

There will be a workout of all boxers Saturday afternoon at 2 pm and Tuesday and Thursday at 5 pm at the Currie Gym.

Phys. Ed. Wins Volleyball Title

Physical Education won its second intramural crown this year by virtue of a double victory over Arts "A" and Physio in a replay. In the first series of 12-minute games, Phys. Ed. Downed Physios 15-10, Arts "A" defeated Phys. Ed. 13-11 and Physios beat Arts "A" with an identical score to set the stage for the rematch.

In two see-sawing games Phys. Ed. finally caked out a 15-13 victory over Physio and a 12-10 win over Arts "A" to be crowned champs.

Nadia Pavlychenko, Diane Matheson and Corrie Oomen turned in outstanding performances for the Phys. Ed team while Marg Robertson, Pauline Jackson, Wendy Massiah starred for the runners-up.

As a sidelight Tommie Nugent was elected next year's Volleyball president, succeeding Myrna Saibil.

These games brought the intramural scene to a close this year. Within the next two weeks the intercollegiate team will be chosen to compete in the big tournament in Toronto on February 13 and 14. Two extramural games are also scheduled against Queen's and Macdonald on January 29 and 31.
